The Historical Society of Southern California was founded on November 1, 1883, and incorporated February 13, 1891. It has enjoyed an unbroken record of continuous activity and growth. Commencing in 1884, and each year through 1934, the society issued an Annual Publication. In 1935 The Quarterly (later renamed the Southern California Quarterly) was initiated. The Society's publications through 1976 have been indexed and described in a concise abstract of articles by Anna Marie and Everett Gordon Hager (comps.), A Bibliography (1958), The Topical Index (1959), and Cumulative Index (1977). The current issue and all back issues are available online to members of the Society (regular level and higher) and through subscribing libraries.

CONTRIBUTORS

Andrea Geiger is an associate professor of history at Simon Fraser University in British Columbia and the author of Subverting Exclusion: Transpacific Encounters with Race, Caste, and Borders, 1885–1928 (Yale, 2011), awarded both the 2011 Theodore Saloutos Book Award (Immigration and Ethnic History Society) and the Association of Asian American Studies History Book Award. Her article, “Reframing Race and Place: Locating Japanese Immigrants in Relation to Indigenous Peoples in the North American West, 1880–1940,” appeared in the Southern California Quarterly 95.3 (Fall 2014). Before turning to history, she clerked for both the state and federal courts in Washington State and served as a reservation attorney for the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation.

Michihiro Ama is the Karashima Tsukasa Associate Professor of Japanese Language and Culture at the University of Montana, Missoula. He was born and raised in Japan, received his PhD in East Asian Languages and Literatures from the University of California-Irvine, and taught as Assistant/Associate Professor of Japanese at the University of Alaska-Anchorage before he joined the University of Montana. His research interests include the trans-Pacific development of Japanese Buddhism, Buddhism in modern Japanese literature and film, and Buddhism and Japanese language. He is the author of Immigrants to the Pure Land: The Modernization, Acculturation, and Globalization of Shin Buddhism, 1898–1941 (University of Hawai‘i Press, 2011) and several subsequent articles regarding the Nikkei Buddhist experience.

Elsa Devienne is Associate Professor of American Studies at the University of Paris Nanterre, France. She earned her doctorate in history from the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales, Paris. In 2016, she held a fellowship at the Princeton-Mellon Initiative in Architecture, Urbanism, and the Humanities. Her current book project traces the transformation of the Los Angeles beaches in the twentieth century from relatively untouched natural spaces into artificial playgrounds geared toward the needs and desires of the white middle class.
